Good Relationships and Behaviour Regulation policy

Newburgh Primary School

Good Relationships and Behaviour Regulation Policy

Rationale:

'We consider the best way to encourage high standards of behaviour in school is a clear code of conduct backed by a balanced combination of expectations and consequences within a positive community atmosphere. We strongly believe that maintaining good behaviour is the responsibility of all staff, governors and parents. We expect staff and parents to be good role models for the children as we develop their attitudes for all aspects of life. The social, emotional and mental health needs of the children is everyone's responsibility and we place a strong emphasis on the well-being of all members of the school community.'

Aims and objectives:

All of us need to feel safe and cared for and enjoy a sense of belonging. Children achieve well and enjoy their learning when relationships are at the centre of all they do.

Teachers create an atmosphere where all feel valued and respected, where the life chances of all children are improved and where children take with them the ability to form meaningful and caring relationships. This policy supports the school community in aiming to allow everyone to work together in an effective and considerate way.

Our ethos is based around inclusive and compassionate principles which are beneficial to the well-being of all children. Our child centred approaches, where their voices are central and where plans utilise their strengths, resources and qualities, are central to the success of the systems.

We provide clear boundaries, predictable routines, expectations and regulated response to behaviour.

We use a high level of nurture and empathy, with containment and structure, to support all our children to feel safe.

Newburgh Primary School has one rule: consideration. The school expects every member of the school community to behave in a considerate manner at all times. We would expect everyone to be considerate of their impact on one another, equipment and the environment.

We help children develop a sense of worth, identity and achievement. We help all our children become self-disciplined, able to accept responsibility for their own actions and to make positive choices.

We support children to develop the life-long skills to cooperate and to appreciate other ways of thinking and behaving.

Each child benefits from a consistent approach, being consistent and fair is not about everyone getting the same, but everyone getting what they need. We understand that behaviour is often a form of communication and an expression of a child's underlying needs.

We promote learning and repair through the use of restorative approaches.

This policy aims to provide children with a framework and environment in which they feel happy, safe and secure. It is the responsibility of the school to provide that environment in order that teachers and children can make the most of lesson times for the real purpose of education. This will also enable learners to become positive, responsible and increasingly independent members of the school community.

Thought For The Day: Challenging Behaviour

"If a child doesn't know how to read, we teach"
"If a child doesn't know how to swim, we teach"
"If a child doesn't know how to multiply, we teach"
"If a child doesn't know how to drive, we teach"
"If a child doesn't know how to behave, we..... teach?.....punish?"

"Why can't we finish the last sentence as automatically as we do the others?"

(Tom Hener (NASDE President)

Safe and secure

Children learn best when they feel safe and secure, they first look to the adults around them to provide this sense of safety. Staff feel empowered to respond in a way that is empathetic but structured, firm but kind.

Staff aim to be predictable, reliable and trustworthy. If things change they acknowledge and validate the difficult emotions that this may evoke in children.

They provide safety cues through facial expressions, frequency and modulations of their voice and use an open and friendly body language.

They look to contain any emotions by listening carefully to the children and organising their thinking into manageable chunks.

They provide a clear structure and boundary within their classrooms and the school environment which is communicated in an age appropriate manner so that all children fully understand this structure.

They endeavour to anticipate things which could be perceived as danger and cause high anxiety to children such as unfamiliar people, sudden changes or changes to routines.

Connections

Children perform best when they make good connections to others and develop a sense of belonging.
(Appendix 2 PACE)

Staff support these connections by:

- Being physically and emotionally available –greeting children as they enter the room, giving them time and attention;

- Attuning to the child by mirroring their tone and mood – asking them about how they feel, colouring a traffic light system, letting them know you get how they feel;
- Being responsive, expressive and interactive – using facial expressions to show emotion, experiencing turn taking activities, sharing enjoyment and anticipation;
- Being playful in their interactions – having fun, stimulating shared joy and joint laughter, playing games, singing songs, repeating events;
- Showing children that they are interested in them– doing things together, exploring, making things and learning about things together;
- Supporting wider connections– providing opportunities for connections with their peers and school community. Providing opportunities to support the development of skills needed for positive relationships such as valuing one another, acknowledgement, encouragement, listening, sharing ideas, acceptance, tolerance and compassion.

Understanding

At Newburgh Primary school, we understand that children benefit from understanding and our everyday interactions with children need to show acceptance, curiosity and empathy. Children will need additional interventions to support them to regulate when they have difficulty processing their emotions. Each classroom uses the Zones of regulation poster, to support children understanding their emotions.

Appendix 1 Zones of Regulation

When we work with all children, and especially those who have experienced trauma or who have had interruptions in their relationships, we use emotion coaching techniques to help them understand themselves.

There are 5 steps to emotion coaching:

- 1 Recognise the child's emotions– recognising, empathising, soothing to calm and connect with the child.
- 2 Validating or labelling that feeling.
- 3 Communicate empathy and understanding to the child by building a place of respect, trust and a safe haven.
- 4 Setting limits to their behaviour.
- 5 Problem solving with the child.

Appendix 3 Helpful scripts for emotion coaching

This shows the type of language that staff will use with your child to support them understanding their emotions and will be beneficial for parents to mirror this language.

Appendix 10 Flipping the lid

We use the language with the children that enables them to understand how they are feeling and that some behaviour is not a simple matter of choice. The children are introduced to the concept of "flipping the lid" which is usually the result of feeling extremely emotionally dysregulated.

Repairing and Restorative Approaches

After incidents and as part of daily interactions staff will work with those children affected to facilitate restorative encounters to resolve conflict and harm and to support change. (Appendix 4)

Restorative conversation:

- What has happened?
- Who was affected?
- What were you feeling?
- What were other involved feeling?
- How can we make things right?

Rewards:

The school has high expectations for behaviour, as it believes that this will develop an ethos of kindness and cooperation and encourage the children to learn to self-regulate and co-operate with each other.

Children receive verbal praise and personal feedback on behaviour and engagement with their learning throughout the day.

Children can receive class marbles so that they build up to fill the class marble jar which is rewarded with 5-10 minutes treat, decided with the class, each time the jar is full.

Children are also given individual house points for their teams; Sapphire Bear, Golden Lion, Emerald Dragon, Crimson Phoenix.

Children will normally receive 1 house point or in exceptional circumstances 2 house points for:

- positive contributions,
- a positive attitude,
- outstanding commitment or
- making the right choice.

House points are counted each week by the House Captains and announced in Friday assembly.

Headteacher and DHT Awards and Merits are given to individual children for exceptional achievements – work, progress, attitudes, resilience. Merits build up for an individual reward at the end of the year.

Consequences

Every child knows the standard of behaviour that we expect in our school. Class expectations are generated by the pupils and the class teacher and will be revisited as appropriate throughout the year. They focus on clear structures and boundaries and are written in a positive manner.

Classes use their PSHE lessons as a tool to promote positive behaviour and to teach the skills of responsibility, respect, reflection and reciprocity. If there are incidents of anti-social behaviour, the class teacher discusses these with the individual child and reflects upon the class rules with the whole class.

Rules around our school are based upon consideration. (Appendix 5)

The school does not tolerate bullying. We recognise the impact of bullying can have a long-term effect on a pupil's well-being and attainment. If we discover that an act of bullying or intimidation has taken place, we act immediately to stop any further occurrences of such behaviour. While it is very difficult to eradicate bullying, we do everything in our power to ensure that all children attend school free from fear (please refer to our Anti-Bullying Policy).

All members of staff are aware of the regulations regarding the use of force by teachers, as set out in DfES Circular 10/98, relating to section 550A of the Education Act 1996: The Use of Force to Control or Restrain Pupils. Staff only intervene physically to restrain children or to prevent injury to a child, or if a child is in danger of hurting him/herself. The actions that we take are in line with Government guidelines on the restraint of children. Please refer to the DfE document 'Use of Reasonable Force: Advice for Headteachers, staff and Governing Bodies' (July 2013).

Members of staff have been 'Team Teach' trained and attended refresher training.

A more comprehensive overview of our rules and consequences can be found in Appendix 2 and 3 of this policy.

The role of the class teacher:

It is the responsibility of class teachers to provide a safe and secure environment where children will learn best. Children benefit from clarity around boundaries and expectations. Agreements about behaviour should be meaningful, clearly communicated and regularly discussed in the classroom.

They build connections with their pupils so that they can best adapt the learning environment to facilitate good quality learning for all pupils.

Children also need to trust that when the agreements over behaviour are broken that there are processes in place to repair the harm, ensure that those harmed feel safe and able to learn and support those who have broken agreements to ensure there are not ongoing difficulties.

They provide clear boundaries, predictable routines, expectations and regulated responses to behaviour in their classrooms. The class teacher treats each child fairly, and treats all children in their classes with respect and understanding.

The class teachers in our school have high expectations of the children with regard to behaviour, and they strive to ensure that all children work to the best of their ability and will challenge pupils who do not meet the school's expectations and maintain the boundaries of acceptable conduct.

If a child struggles to adhere class expectations or disrupts the learning for themselves or others repeatedly, the class teacher keeps a record of all such incidents on our electronic system (CPOMs). In the first instance, the class teacher deals with incidents themselves in the normal manner. However, if the child continues to struggle to adhere to class expectations, the class teacher will seek help and advice following the Escalation of Behaviour regulation. (Appendix 7) If incidents involve an escalation to the Senior Leadership team, then they will record those incidents using our electronic behaviour system. Measures will be put in place which are both general and targeted interventions to improve a child's behaviour and support them to meet the behaviour standards, making reasonable adjustments for pupils with a disability.

The class teacher liaises with internal and external support, as necessary, to guide the progress of each child. The class teacher may, for example, discuss the needs of a child with the SENDCo, Senior Leadership team, and/or the education social worker. The Headteacher will be consulted prior to any external conversation.

The class teacher reports to parents about the progress of each child in their class, in line with the whole-school policy. The class teacher may also contact a parent if there are concerns about the behaviour or welfare of a child.

The role of the Headteacher:

It is the responsibility of the Headteacher, under the School Standards and Framework Act 1998, to implement the school good relationships and behaviour regulation policy consistently throughout the school, and to report to governors, when requested, on the effectiveness of the policy. Our online behaviour monitoring system ensures the Senior Leadership team can monitor patterns of behaviour and implement strategies to suit the class or individual child's needs. It is also the responsibility of the Headteacher to ensure the health, safety and welfare of all children in the school. Pupil behaviour does not normally disrupt teaching, learning or school routines. Disruption will not be tolerated and proportionate action will be taken to restore acceptable standards of behaviour.

The Headteacher supports the staff by implementing the policy, by setting the standards of expectations, and by supporting staff in their implementation of the policy.

The Headteacher keeps records of all reported serious incidents.

If none of these consequences work, the Headteacher will consider suspensions and/or exclusion. This decision will have been reached having exhausted all available avenues of support such as Educational Welfare, the Educational Psychology Service and behavioural support service. DfE and LA guidance will also be considered.

The Headteacher has the responsibility for giving fixed-term suspensions to individual children for serious acts of misbehaviour. For repeated or very serious acts of unacceptable behaviour, the Headteacher may permanently exclude a child.

The decision to exclude a pupil must be lawful, reasonable and fair. Schools have a statutory duty not to discriminate against pupils on the basis of protected characteristics, such as disability or race. Under the Equality Act 2010 (the Equality Act), schools must not discriminate against, harass or victimise pupils because of: sex; race; disability; religion or belief; sexual orientation; or gender reassignment. For disabled children, this includes a duty to make reasonable adjustments to policies and practices and the provision of auxiliary aids. Schools should consider the fair treatment of pupils from groups who are vulnerable to exclusion such as children with Special Needs, Looked After Children and children under the Child Protection System.

The role of parents:

The school collaborates actively with parents, as a shared understanding, ownership and personal responsibility is best achieved through working with children through a process to develop a clear picture of what is needed in order to establish a calm and harmonious environment where there are positive relationships and children feel safe, included and able to learn. Parents working alongside us ensure the children receive consistent messages about how to behave at home and at school.

This policy states our aims and the procedures that the school will follow to ensure a consistent and good level of behaviour is maintained and have shared resources with parents to further support them.

We endeavour to build a supportive dialogue between the home and the school, and we inform parents immediately if we have concerns about their child's welfare or behaviour.

If the school has to use reasonable consequences, we expect parents to support the actions of the school. If parents have any concerns about the way that their child has been treated, they should initially contact the class teacher. If the concern remains, they should contact the school office who will contact the Deputy Headteacher. If the concern remains then parent may request a meeting with the Headteacher. Should the problem remain unresolved, they should contact the school

Governors. If these discussions cannot resolve the problem, a formal grievance or appeal process can be implemented.

The role of Governors:

The Governing Body has the responsibility of setting down these general guidelines on standards of discipline and behaviour, and of reviewing their effectiveness. The Governors support the Headteacher in adhering to these guidelines.

The Headteacher has the day-to-day authority to implement the school's policy on behaviour and discipline, but Governors may give advice to the Headteacher about particular disciplinary issues. The Headteacher must take this into account when making decisions about matters of behaviour.

Governors are informed of serious behaviour via the Headteacher's report to Governors.

Suspensions and permanent exclusions:

We do not wish to suspend or exclude any child from school, but sometimes this may be a necessary sanction when warranted as part of creating a calm, safe and supportive environment where children can learn and thrive. Updated national guidance (July 2022) in relation to exclusions can be found at:

DFE Suspension and Permanent Exclusion from Maintained schools

Only the Headteacher (or the acting Headteacher) has the power to suspend or exclude a child from school. The Headteacher may suspend a child for one or more fixed periods, for up to 45 days in any one school year. In extreme and exceptional circumstances, the Headteacher may exclude a child permanently. The law does not allow for extending a fixed-period suspension or 'converting' a fixed-period suspension into a permanent exclusion. In exceptional cases, usually where further evidence has come to light, a further fixed-period suspension may be issued to begin immediately after the first period ends; or a permanent exclusion may be issued to begin immediately after the end of the fixed period.

Forcing a pupil to leave the school or not allowing them to attend school on disciplinary grounds is a suspension and must be done in accordance with the School discipline regulations 2012.

If the Headteacher suspends or permanently excludes a child, they inform the parents immediately, giving reasons for the exclusion. At the same time, the Headteacher makes it clear to the parents that they can, if they wish, appeal against the decision to the Governing Body. The school informs the parents how to make any such appeal.

The Headteacher informs the LA and the Governing Body about any suspensions or permanent exclusion, which would result in the pupil being suspended or permanently excluded for a total of more than five school days(or more than ten lunchtimes) in a term.

The Governing Body itself cannot either exclude a child or extend the exclusion period made by the Headteacher, however, the Governing Body is required to review the Head Teacher's decision to exclude the child.

The Governing Body has a discipline committee which is made up of three members. This committee considers any exclusion appeals on behalf of the Governors. This committee would be convened as and when required.

When an appeals panel meets to consider an exclusion, they consider the circumstances under which the child was excluded, consider any representation by parents and the LA, and consider whether the child should be reinstated.

If the Governors' appeals panel decides that a child should be reinstated, the Headteacher must comply with this ruling.

When the child returns to school, the school will offer a reintegration strategy that offers pupils a fresh start; helps them understand the impact of their behaviour on themselves and others; teaches them how to meet the high expectations of behaviour in line with the school culture; fosters a renewed sense of belonging within the community; and builds engagement with learning. This reintegration strategy should be clearly communicated at the reintegration meeting before or at the beginning of the child's return to school.

Drug and alcohol-related incidents:

Please refer to our Drugs Policy for guidance in this area.

Monitoring and review:

The Headteacher monitors the effectiveness of this policy on a regular basis. They also report to the Governing Body on the effectiveness of the policy and, if necessary, make recommendations for further improvements.

The school keeps a variety of records concerning incidents where a child struggles to adhere to class or school expectations. All incidents which involve repeated disruption, physical contact with peers, inappropriate verbal language and violence in school are recorded on our electronic behaviour system. Alerts will be sent to the senior leadership team to ensure that they can track patterns of behaviour and monitor intervention strategies. Incidents during lunch are reported to class teachers, who will record the situations as appropriate. Serious incidents will be referred to the Headteacher who will record said incidents as appropriate.

The Headteacher keeps a record of any child who is suspended for a fixed-term, or who is permanently excluded.

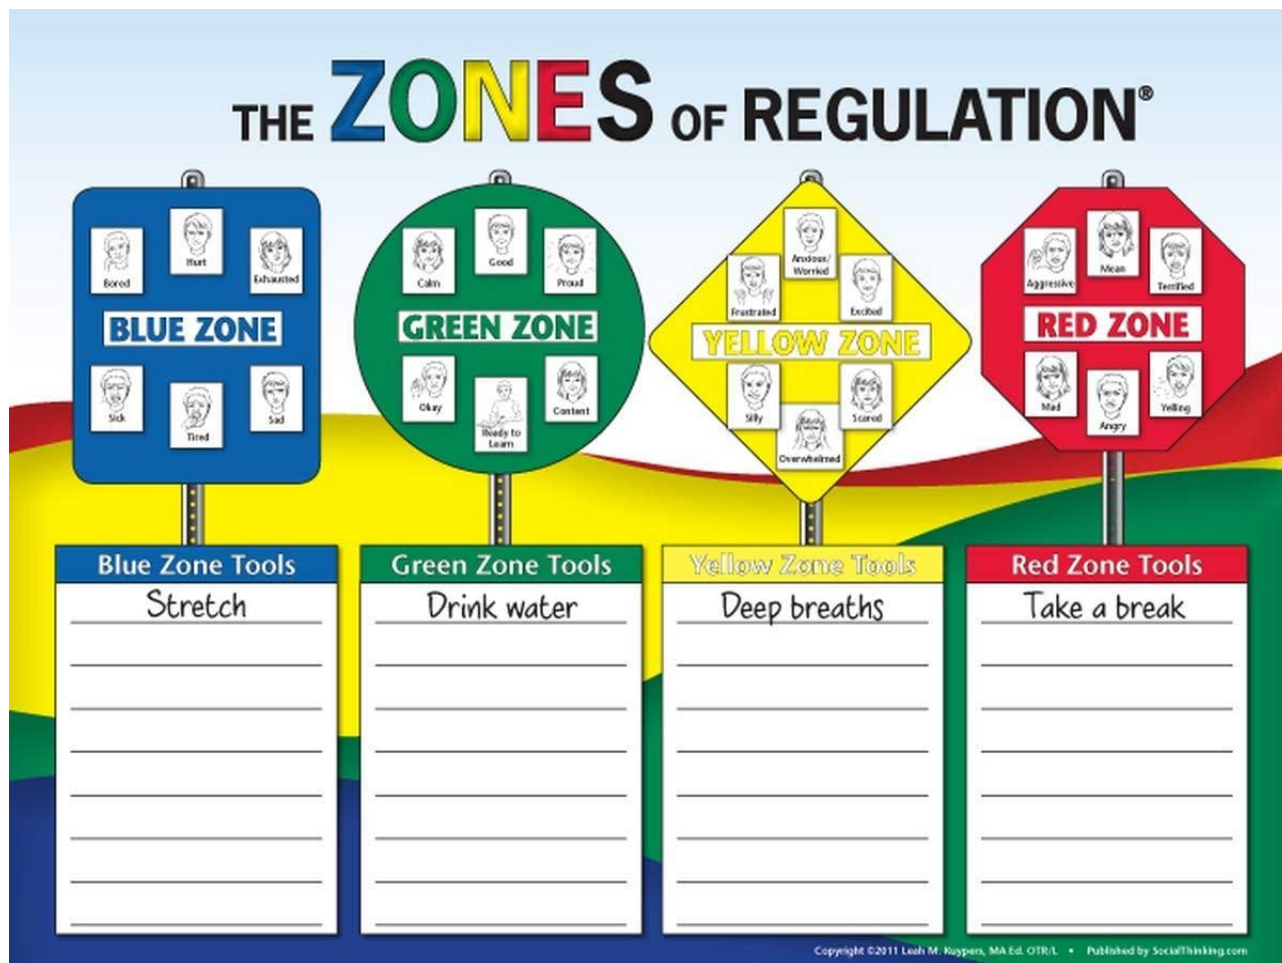

It is the responsibility of the Governing Body to monitor the rate of exclusions, and to ensure that the school policy is administered fairly and consistently. The Governing Body will pay particular attention to matters of racial equality; it will seek to ensure that the school abides by the non-statutory guidance The Duty to Promote Race Equality: A Guide For Schools, and that no child is treated unfairly because of race or ethnic background.

The Governing Body reviews this policy every two years. The Governors may, however, review the policy earlier than this if the Government introduces new regulations, or if the Governing Body receives recommendations on how the policy might be improved.

Following directions from all adults			Engaging with the activities in a respectful and considerate way
Sitting at the required work space and concentrating upon the task.	Washing hands and using the toilets in a safe and orderly manner		Supporting peers with kind words and inclusive actions
Being polite and well-mannered at all times. Wearing your uniform smartly.

Our one school rule is 'consideration'. We are working together to achieve this by:

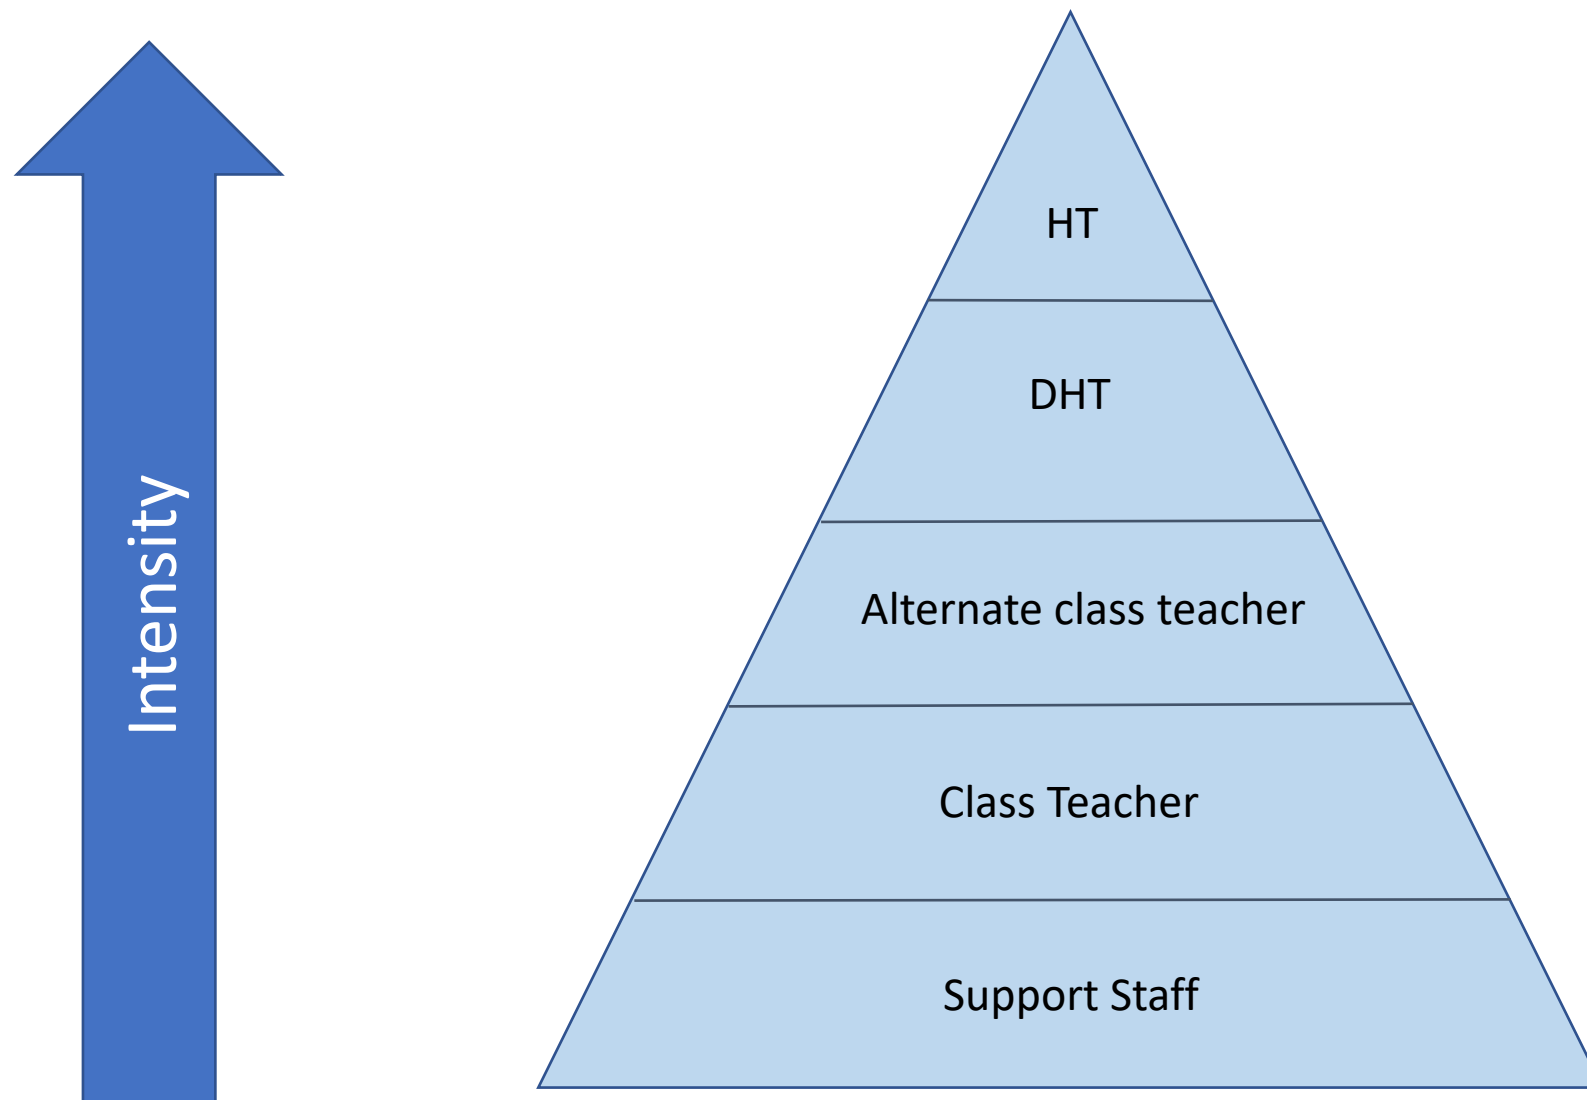

If a child feels that someone is doing or saying something to them that upsets them they are encouraged to take control and say "stop it, please".

If the behaviour or comments do not stop this should be reported to a member of staff, who investigates the allegation.

The meaning of 'consideration' and 'stop it, please' are reinforced in assemblies and in class throughout the year

Big Brain, Little Brain: "Flipping Your Lid"

Adapted from Siegel, D., & Bryson, T., 2012

INFORMATION AND STRATEGIES

WHAT IS "FLIPPING MY LID"

Let's learn how your brain works. When you "flip your lid" it means that your feelings get so big that you lose control of your ability to think and act clearly. You may start:

- kicking, screaming, pushing, throwing things
- fidgeting, acting restless, trying to run away from a situation
- feeling numb, unable to move, find it hard to speak.
- feeling unable to control your reactions

SO HOW DOES THIS HAPPEN?

"HAND, BRAIN MODEL"

Pretend your hand is a brain. Your wrist is your brain stem. It helps you with life functions like breathing, your heart beating, and sleeping.

Place your thumb across the palm of your hand to make a number 4, pointing your fingers straight up. Your thumb is your "little brain" and is where emotions, memories, and senses are stored. It is the feelings part of your brain.

Put your four fingers over your thumb. That is your "big brain" and it hugs your "little brain". The "big brain" helps you to think, reason, problem solve, and have self-control. It is the thinking part of your brain.

Your "little brain" is like a security guard. When it feels like you are in danger, it reacts and goes into protection mode. It takes over your "big brain", and puts you in a "fight, flight, or freeze" response. Fight, flight or freeze is a way your body acts during stress, by fighting back, or running away from the danger, or losing the ability to move or talk, like mentioned before.

Your "little brain" also activates your brainstem. This means when it feels in danger, you may feel your heart and breathing speed up, your face getting warmer, or your tummy aching. When your "little brain" and "big brain" stop talking to each other, you 'flip your lid'. Now, put your four fingers back up straight. When your lid is flipped, it makes it very hard to control your feelings, or think clearly.

To help get your thinking brain back on track, and have all three parts of your brain communicating together again, you need to calm your big feelings, and ease your overwhelming emotions. By doing this it will help your "big brain" to hug your "little brain", and you will feel calm again.

STRATEGIES: ABOUT TO "FLIP YOUR LID"

When you feel like you are close to "flipping your lid" because your feelings are getting bigger and are becoming overwhelming, you can help keep your thinking brain and emotional brain together by first noticing how you are feeling. This will help keep you calm and respond to big emotions. By noticing the big feeling that is overwhelming you – mad, sad, or scary, for example, you can recognize the big feeling growing inside, and help it not overwhelm you, so you don't "flip your lid". Try some of these strategies.

- Take a break from the activity
- Hug a person or a teddy bear
- Deep Breaths in your mouth and out your nose
- Listen to calming music
- Think about a relaxing place
- Blow Bubbles
- Find five things you can see in the room
- Hold something cold or warm
- Squeeze a stress ball or something squishy
- Colour
- Chew some gum
- Push against a wall
